

Speaker Bio | Oliver Orellana

Orellana is a junior at Lipscomb University double majoring in international political science and urban leadership and policy. Born and raised in Honduras, he came to the United States in 2015. Orellana is passionate about social justice, social sciences, education, and scholarship. He is an Equal Chance for Education Scholar, an intern with The Education Trust-Tennessee, and a tutor at Lipscomb's Academic Success Center. Orellana currently serves as junior class senator for Lipscomb's Student Government Association and is the president and founder of the campus Civic Engagement and Advocacy Club, a group that engages Lipscomb students with democratic institutions. He is a member and past president of the Lipscomb University Affinity Group for Latino Students.